

William Browne

Lt. William Browne (left) served for three years in Boone County and 22 years as a field officer before taking on the role of the public relations lieutenant in Indianapolis. He received his associate's degree in conservation law enforcement from Vincennes University. He is happily married with seven grown children and one still at home. In his spare time, he loves to fish and hunt and spend time with his family.